

Running Effective 1:1 Meetings

Interactive management-skills course · Articulate Rise 360

Audience: New people managers

Challenge: New managers often hold regular 1:1s without creating the conditions for honest, useful conversations.

Solution: A short interactive course covering meeting structure, common management mistakes, active listening, and practical decision-making.

My role: Instructional design · Content development · Interaction design · Articulate Rise 360 development · SCORM publishing and LMS deployment

Tools: Articulate Rise 360 · TalentLMS

Key features: Scenario-based practice · Sorting activity · Flashcards · Knowledge checks · Final assessment

Design decisions: Defined the behaviours new managers should be able to demonstrate in 1:1 conversations, then aligned scenarios, knowledge checks and the final assessment to those outcomes. Used realistic management situations so learners practise judgement and communication choices rather than only recall guidance.

Accessibility: Reviewed image alt text and other accessibility considerations before publishing.

Quality assurance: Reviewed content accuracy, strengthened learner feedback, added source references, and refined the final assessment to better align with the course objectives.

Testing: Published as SCORM and tested end-to-end in TalentLMS.

DS

Daria Shchygoleva

Running Effective 1:1 Meetings

START COURSE

Regular 1:1 meetings should be more than status updates. Done well, they give managers and employees space to raise concerns, solve problems, share feedback, and stay connected—but it's easy for them to become rushed, unfocused, or dominated by the manager's agenda.

In this course, you'll learn how to structure effective 1:1 meetings, avoid common mistakes, stay present during the conversation, and respond thoughtfully when difficult or unexpected issues come up. You'll also practise your approach through realistic workplace scenarios.

Click on the first lesson below—or the “Start Course” button above—when you're ready to begin.

≡ Welcome!

≡ Why 1:1s Matter

≡ Setting Up 1:1s That Work

≡ Managing New Manager Meetings

Ask AI Tutor

Stay present vs. breaks focus

Drag each action into the column where it belongs: does it help you stay present in a 1:1, or does it break your focus?

Answering messages mid-conversation

Keeps you present

Breaks focus

Next:
The 8 mistakes that quietly kill 1:1s

CONTINUE

Lesson 5 of 8

Practice: Handle It Yourself

DS Daria Shchygoleva

Your Turn: The Missed Deadline

You're starting your weekly 1:1 with Alex, a member of your team. This week, Alex missed a deadline on the Q3 report – the first time that's happened in the six months they've been on your team. As you open your notebook, you notice Alex looks tense sitting down across from you.

CONTINUE

Question

01/05

According to Andy Grove and Kim Scott, who should own the agenda in a 1:1?

- ☐ The manager writes it, based on what they need updates on
- ☒ The direct report writes it, bringing whatever's on their mind
- ☐ The manager writes it, and the direct report adds a few items
- ☐ It should alternate between manager and report each week

Correct

Right — Grove and Scott agree the 1:1 works best when the direct report drives it. The moment the manager sets the agenda, even with good intentions, it quietly becomes the manager's meeting again.

NEXT

Question

05/05

Which situation signals a manager should raise a structural problem with their own manager, rather than just trying harder?

- ☐ A 1:1 had to be rescheduled once due to illness
- ☐ They forgot their notebook once
- ☐ A direct report brought up something personal
- ☒ They have 22 direct reports and can't fit in meaningful 1:1s

Correct

This situation indicates a structural issue as the number of direct reports exceeds a manageable level, making it difficult to conduct effective 1:1 meetings.

NEXT

Reports > Courses

Running Effective 1-1 Meetings

OverviewUsersLearning activitiesUnit matrixTimeline

Reports > Learning activities

running-effective-1-1-meetings-scorm12-59PGVO7d

OverviewUsersSCORM analysisTimeline

Search

☐ User	Completion date	Progress status	Score	Training time
D. Shchygoleva	31/08/2026	Passed	100.00%	1m 6s

